Fill in the parties and eligible offerings before signing

Commission Labs legal entity name	Investor legal name

Lab address	Investor address

Effective date	First monthly contribution date	State or jurisdiction

1. Funding and permitted use

The Investor may contribute $1,000 per month for up to 12 months, for a maximum total of $12,000. Commission Labs will use 100% of contributions only for third-party AI model/API usage and generation credits, including applicable provider charges. The Lab will pay labor, marketing, equipment, and general overhead from other funds. Unspent contributions will be returned when funding ends.

2. Eligible work and customer receipts

Only offerings listed in Schedule A are eligible. Each offering must be developed during the funding period. Both parties will approve additions to Schedule A in writing. Eligible revenue means customer money actually received for those offerings, minus related refunds, chargebacks, and sales taxes. Amounts owed but not yet collected do not count.

3. Investor payments

Commission Labs will pay the Investor 10% of eligible revenue for each calendar quarter. A report and any amount due will be sent within 30 days after quarter-end. A quarterly payment cannot exceed the unpaid balance of the 1.5-times payout cap. Payments come from customer receipts. No payment is due for a quarter with zero eligible revenue.

4. End of the revenue share

The revenue share ends on the earlier of: (a) the date total investor payments equal 1.5 times total contributions received; or (b) 36 calendar months after the final contribution date. Eligible customer receipts through that end date count. A final earned payment may be sent within 30 days after the quarter in which the end date occurs. No new receipts count after the end date.

5. Early end of contributions

The first 3 monthly contributions are a pilot. After that, either party may stop future contributions with 30 days' written notice. Stopping contributions does not cancel the revenue share already earned for Schedule A offerings. The payout cap becomes 1.5 times the amount actually contributed, and the 36-month period runs from the final contribution actually made.

6. Records and reporting

Commission Labs will keep records of contributions, AI provider charges, eligible customer receipts, refunds, and investor payments. Each quarterly report will show those amounts and the calculation of the investor payment. The Investor may review supporting records on reasonable written notice, subject to customer confidentiality.

7. Ownership and risk

This agreement gives the Investor no equity, voting rights, management role, or ownership of products or intellectual property. There is no guaranteed repayment or return. Sales may be zero; the Investor may lose all contributed funds. The parties understand that this form records proposed commercial terms and does not determine any securities-law status or exemption.

8. Changes and notices

Changes must be in writing and signed by both parties. Notices may be sent to the addresses or email contacts the parties provide below. This agreement is governed by the jurisdiction entered on page 1.
